Cleveland was nominated by acclamation in St. Louis Wednesday afternoon.

—Oregon went Republican last Monday, by a majority of more than 3000. Free trade is out of favor on the Pacific coast.

—Personal differences should sink out of sight in the coming campaign, and all stand shoulder to shoulder in the battle of ballots, which involves the integrity of the county, state and nation.

—The C. B. & Q. will put on a vestibule train this week to meet the competition of the Santa Fe in this new departure. But there yet remains thirty miles of distance which the "Q" must overcome to put them on an equal footing with the Santa Fe. An air line for the "Q" is the only hope for successful competition.

—At the laying of the corner stone of the confederate soldiers' monument in Mississippi, Miss Winnie Davis, as the representative of her father, Jefferson Davis, was presented with a silver crown. The act was not generally well received as it is conceded by all who are keeping step with the present age, that Jeff Davis is not worthy of any sort of crown.

WHY IT WAS DONE.

The nomination of Cleveland by acclamation Wednesday afternoon was expected and did not create the least surprise. The bare, bald fact is, that the Democratic party could do nothing else, as a failure to renominate him would have been to repudiate three years of Democratic administration, and would have handed victory over to the Republican party at the beginning.

But it is well known that the convention did not unanimously indorse his principles as expressed in his message, and the question: Why did the convention indorse the man and not his principles? has crept into the minds of thousands of Democrats in the past twenty four hours.

A failure to unanimously indorse the man would have been party suicide; but they feared an indorsement of his principles would be equally suicidal, as western and southern democrats largely oppose his free trade ideas as expressed in his message and the Mills bill.

This accounts for the nomination of Thurman for second place. He is advanced in age and repugnant to Cleveland, but as he has always carried a red bandana handkerchief the thought is suggested that he might arouse an "Old Hickory" sort of enthusiasm, and thus hide the chagrin that is produced by being compelled to indorse a man without indorsing his principles.

But the campaign of 1888 is a campaign of principles and the party that looks for success in the waving of a red bandana, will be sat upon in November with a weight that will crush it out of all recognition.

OUR COUNTY TICKET.

Few counties in the state or possibly in the west, have a people that do more reading, in proportion to the number of inhabitants, than Adair county. Not only do the county papers receive a greater patronage than in other counties, as evidenced by statements of circulation, but metropolitan papers and periodicals of the very best standing in the literary world, are distributed and read to a degree that is surprising to one who has not given the matter investigation. The class of our people who want to hear but one side of a question is of a very limited number, and we feel proud that we can truthfully make such statement.

Hence, we have a people that are ever ready to listen to reason, who are broad and liberal in their views and recognize first of all, the fundamental principal of good government, that the majority must rule. Indeed the man, who is not willing that the majority should rule would be looked upon in such a community, and justly so, as one who is too much wrapped up in his own selfish schemes to be safely trusted with anything pertaining to the welfare of the people. Last Friday the Republican party of Adair county made known their wishes at the primary election, and it is needless to talk of dissension or an appeal from that decision; for every man, who lays any claim at all to party affiliation, will wheel into line and help carry out the expressed wish of the majority. With the strength of our party and the abiding faith in the virtue of Republican principles, a great victory for our county ticket may be safely predicted for November.

Green Grove Items.

We are having beautiful weather. Farmers are all very busy putting in their crops at this writing.

On account of early planting and bad seed corn, much replanting has to be done.

Mr. Ira Harlan of Millard, was visiting in this community from Friday to Monday.

Rev. Bruner preached at the Grove last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Wheat and oats are looking splendidly and there is every prospect of an abundant harvest.

Thomas Sanders is yet alive, but has become reduced to a skeleton. He will be 79 years old in July.

Grandma Ruggles is still quite active, though 82 years old. She has received her second eyesight. P.Y.

Beyond the River.

Cool for June weather. The cemetery fence is completed.

Candidates are now only "one in a hill."

Spring creek during the recent rise made a clean sweep of the false work of the bridge that is being built at Novinger. Some of the timbers were also lost which will necessitate a delay in the completion of the structure.

Geo. Darr raised his new barn last Saturday.

The election passed off quietly last Friday, Liberty township casting 107 votes.

Mr. Otto's mill is not now in running order, the boiler having been found to be defective. He has ordered a new one and will be ready to grind as soon as he can conveniently do so.

Mr. Jacob Shafer has given his residence a new coat of paint. J. O. T.

Most men look out for number one. Most women look out for number two—at the shoe store.

THE SUMMER HOLIDAY.

JUANITA LEA.

God's summer like a favored child,
Comes lightly through the trees,
He gives her all her heart's desire,
Nor finds her hard to please;
Her decked hair with flowers is fair,
The grass has reached her knees.
He gives her gardens bent with fruit,
And shady woodland bowers,
And groves alive with thrushes notes,
And meadows bright with flowers,
The night and day, her guardians they
Her nymphs, the rosy hours.
And yet for all her queenly realm,
She like a child appears,
For rich and poor she runs to meet,
The young, or bowed with years;
Her kisses sweet bid care retreat,
And bless remote with tears.
Oh! let us cast our looks aside
And seek her while we may;
The happy earth lies glorified,
With love and life to-day;
Beyond the gates God's Summer waits,
She calls—come away—
Kirksville, Mo., May 1888.

St. Nicholas for June 1888.

The June St. Nicholas has a very strong leading article, entitled "A Great Show," by Professor Alfred Church, describing the Circus Maximus at Rome. It is finely illustrated by E. H. Blashfield. Thomas Nelson Page continues the excellent serial, "Two Little Confederates," and Celia Thaxter contributes a charming children's story, "Cat's Cradle." "Caterina and her Fate," by E. Cavazza, is an old Sicilian legend put into verse, and richly illustrated by R. B. Birch.

Louise Chandler Moulton writes a full but simple memorial of "Louisa May Alcott," containing extracts from her letters to the editor of St. Nicholas; and the article is illustrated by a new picture of Miss Alcott, which is much more pleasing than any before published, and also by a picture of her adopted daughter (the child of her sister "Amy"), Lulu Nieriker.

The Century Magazine.

The June number of The Century opens with the second of Mr. Kennan's illustrated articles, this one being on "Plains and Prisons of Western Siberia." The frontispiece of the magazine shows an exile party on a muddy road near Tiumen. The subjects treated by Mr. Kennan are "Siberia's Enormous Territory," "Varieties of Climate," "A Farming Region," "Flowers and Mosquitoes," "The Forwarding Prison," "The Hospital wards," "The Women's Prison," "An Exile Marching party," "The Convict Barge," etc. There is nothing more astonishing in this article than Mr. Kennan's account of the hospital wards. He says: "At last, having finished our inspection of the main building we came out into the prison yard, where I drew a long, deep breath of pure air, with the delicious sense of relief that a half drowned man must feel when he comes to the surface of the water."

The Lincoln History in this number contains chapters on "The Advance," "Ball Run," "Fremont" and "Military Emancipation." A striking point in this installment is the account of Lincoln's reception of the news of Ball Run. In connection with the Ball Run, defeat the authors say, that "War and politics, campaigns and statecraft, are Siamese twins, inseparable and independent; and to talk of military operations without the direction and interference of an Administration is as absurd as to plan a campaign without recruits, pay, or rations."

OBITUARY.

Died at his home in Lincoln, Nebraska, May 23d, of Congestion of the liver and paralysis of the bowels, J. W. Anderson. Again the grim monster has invaded our circle and taken from us our loving brother. Long and intense was his suffering, but he bore it with patience until death came to close the scene. He was taken sick in July 1887, and constantly grew worse. His disease baffled the best medical skill and relief seemed to be beyond their power. He was an affectionate husband, a loving father, and was loved and respected by all who knew him. He was in the employ of Messrs. Fairbanks & Co. of St. Louis, until within a few months of his death, as their general agent for nearly five years, and was highly respected and appreciated by them. He was born in Clinton Co. Ohio, Jan. 18th, 1845. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn. May our Heavenly father throw around them the loving arm of care and protection and guide them safely to the haven of eternal bliss, where there shall come no more parting and where there is no night, no sorrow and pain. We laid him in the Wyuka Cemetery, there to rest until the glorious resurrection morn when the Master will come to make up his jewels.

I know thou hast gone to the haven of rest
Then why should my soul be so sad,
I know thou hast gone where the weary are blest,
And the mourner looks up and is glad.

Where love has put off in the land of its birth,
The stains it has gathered in this
And lope the sweet singer that gladdens the earth
Lies asleep on the bosom of bliss.
